

To whom it may concern,

It is my pleasure to confidently recommend Muhammad Fauzan Aristya Putra “Fauzan”. I had the pleasure of supervising him at my startup over the summer as a Full-Stack Engineer intern. Fauzan is an exceptional team member who has demonstrated not only excellence in his tasks, but also consistent interest in engineering, designing, and innovating.

Fauzan’s insightful and critical thinking was noticed especially given his young age, in his assignments, he asked questions and provided solutions that showed he was engaging with the project content beyond a surface level understanding. I recall discussions during meetings, as well as conversations after that demonstrated Fauzan’s interest in the project and ability to pose thoughtful critical questions. His contributions were characterized by quality of output, not by quantity. Fauzan’s disciplined work ethic and commitment to standards of excellence were consistently observed in his performance at work; he exceeded the project deliverables. The project requires personal time management, planning, and organization skills, in addition to being challenged intellectually and personally to apply. He demonstrated an ability to understand complex behavioral nuances to interpret, analyze, and predict work behavior related to unstructured requirements. He has fulfilled his tasks with a consistent positive attitude, willingness to do more, and always completing tasks before the deadlines. His dedication to this role is clear, his generous support to the team above and beyond. In addition to team support, he has suggested creative strategies and processes, specifically related to the project workflow. I have always been comfortable asking Fauzan to complete any type of task. He always worked with minimal supervision, showing initiative, and using his communication skills to seek clarification and communicate updates as needed. All in all, Fauzan’s generous attitude to exploring new ideas, the ease in working with him, and his diverse skillset have made it a pleasure to work with.

In terms of personal qualities and work ethic, to reiterate, Fauzan is clearly dedicated and determined. Over the time that I have known him, he has consistently performed well – he demonstrated a clear understanding and intellectual insight into project content, as well as applied technical knowledge, even in the domain of research. Overall, Fauzan effectively applies time management skills and a practical approach to complete tasks to manage his high workload and deliver successfully.

To conclude, I confidently recommend Fauzan for this role. I believe that he will be an excellent addition to the team, as well as the organization overall. Please reach out to me if I can elaborate on any aspect of this recommendation.

Sincerely,
